Orano Canada Inc.
Public Disclosure Protocol

Orano Canada Inc. is committed to conducting our operations in a profitable, socially responsible and environmentally sustainable manner. Orano's Code of Ethics requires that our communication program is transparent, sincere and open. In keeping with our commitments, Orano's overarching communication program provides information to neighbouring communities, the public and other stakeholders who are interested in our operations. Orano works to identify the information that our stakeholders value through open dialogue. The methods of communication vary based on the effectiveness and purpose of such communications, and may be oral, written, or social media based.

This Public Disclosure Protocol is part of Orano's overarching communication program and in through it Orano commits to:

- Provide information through public communications, community engagement, and postings to our website relating to significant operational changes such as a production increase or an expansion.
- Post to our website, within three to five business days, all information related to a work-related fatality, catastrophic event or environmental event that triggers a Section 29 notification pursuant to the General Nuclear Safety and Control Regulations, or that may result in significant public concern.
- Post to our website, on a quarterly basis, summaries of discharge of contaminants of potential concern against licence limits for treated water released to the environment as part of normal operations.
- Maintain two-way communication channels with stakeholders as a means to identify and respond to issues and concerns.
- Consult periodically with stakeholders to ensure that communications are timely and informative, and amend the Public Disclosure Protocol as necessary to address stakeholders' requests.
- Post a copy of this protocol on our website.
